

Research Projects

- “Towards an inclusive urban reconstruction policy development process in Nepal” in partnership with the Earth Observatory of the University of Singapore and the University of Zurich, Switzerland, funded by the International Institute for Environment and Development (IIED), England.
- “Understanding habitats, housing and social changes in post-disaster traditional and relocated rural settlements in India”, funded by the Swiss National Science Foundation (SNSF) and the Swiss Agency for Development Cooperation (SDC)
- “Is relocation a viable strategy to mitigate the risks of natural hazards? Issues and experiences from the city of Santa Fe, Argentina, in partnership with the Universidad Nacional del Litoral, Santa Fe, funded by the Swiss Agency for Development Cooperation (SDC).
- “Post-disaster reconstruction in Sri Lanka. Housing processes in contested and conflictive environments”, funded by SDC
- “Floods, livelihoods and housing processes in Santa Fe, Argentina”. A training-cum-research project (with fieldwork in Santa Fe) in partnership with the University of Buenos Aires, funded by KFPE.
- “Towards sustainable disaster preparedness. The role of local, national and global responses in enhancing societal resilience to natural hazards in India and Nicaragua”, an international research project funded the Swiss National Science Foundation (SNSF) and the Swiss Agency for Development Cooperation (SDC)
- “Sustainable Post-Disaster Housing Reconstruction. Environmentally, economically, and socio-culturally friendly strategies to repair, improve and maintain hazard-affected buildings in post-tsunami Tamil Nadu”, funded by SDC.
- “Vernacular Housing and Building Practices in Tsunami-hit Coastal Communities in Tamil Nadu (India)”, funded by SDC.
- “A comparative analysis of housing reconstruction approaches in post-earthquake Gujarat (India), funded by SDC and Swiss Solidarity.